THE CALF CLUB PROGRAM

At a time when there is a growing tendency to consider the $ mark as the criterion of success, we too, perhaps, have erred in headlining our reports of local calf club shows with the amount of money received for the prize-winning animals.

From what we can gather, the calf clubs themselves have tended to drift away from their original objectives, and the interest and aim of the members is becoming more and more mercenary as time goes on. This, if it be the case is unfortunate, for nothing could be further from the truth. Of course, the ultimate aim of calf club work is to raise the standards of livestock and improve the understanding of its selection and breeding, with the eventual aim of bringing about greater monetary returns, but this is the long range objective. The present aim has very little to do with money.

It appears from reports received at this time that interest in calf club work is not at the high level it should be, and in the Wainwright district, in particular has fallen off sharply. It seems that a primary cause for this falling off is that the members have not been receiving quite as much for their calves at the sale as they felt they should. Let us therefore try and take another look at the whole picture, and see if it is not possible that we are losing sight of the plan and purpose of the clubs in our desire for greater cash rewards.

The purpose of the calf club movement is chiefly to distribute up-to-date information and educate young farm folks in the methods of judging, feeding, caring for and handling livestock. In addition the club affords instruction in the handling of meetings, in conduct in general and good sportsmanship and citizenship. Actually the latter phases of the work are given considerable prominence, and nearly half of the young persons time while working with the group, is devoted to learning the proper handling of and deportment in public meetings.

However, as the name implies, the more important part of the work is that connected with the actual work relating to stock-raising, and here the information and instruction which is given to the club members is well worth the time and cost of club membership.

Moreover there are other rewards which may be enjoyed by members of an active and industrious club. The best club member in each club is rewarded with a free week-long trip to the club camp at Vermilion, and over and above this, the best judging team in the district served by the D.A. is entered in the Provincial stock judging competition, with the opportunity, if successful, of representing Alberta at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto.

Last year Provost was the successful team in winning the honor of entering the provincial judging competition — Wainwright, Edgerton and Chauvin have equal chances.

We must appeal to members and prospective members of the local calf clubs to direct their attention otherwise than to the financial rewards of club work. The financial reward is indeed desirable, but must not be the chief objective of the club. Big prizes depend on too many things, and very often are almost in the category of a donation to the club, while the raising of good livestock is something that is permanent and will in itself bring rewards far greater than the passing windfalls of calf club work.

Mary Ellen's little friends, in planning a picnic, left her out. At the last minute they relented and invited her after all. "Hurry, dear, urged her mother. "Wash your face and sit on a clean dress while I fix up your lunch."

Mary Ellen shook her head. "It's no use, mother," she explained. "I've already prayed for rain."

PROSPECTS UNPROMISING

The announcement that the international food exchange plan fostered by the United Nations has fallen through is indeed unhappy news. As stated in our last issue, Britain is by far our greatest purchaser of surplus farm products — and by the world "surplus" we do not mean the result of some occasional overproduction, but rather that substantial part of the produce of the farm for which there is no local market.

Britain cannot continue to buy these goods unless there is some means devised whereby she can pay for them. We will have a hard time selling them to anyone else, because most nations who could pay for them are already producing a surplus themselves, for which they must find markets.

However, on second thought, we wonder whether the collapse of the organization will make too much difference. It is obvious that no organization and no manipulation other than those normally carried on by international trade and finance, can lift Britain by her bootstraps and put dollars in her pockets. We've said this so many times that it may be a little boring, but still we feel the need of its repetition: "About the only way in which Britain (or any other country) can get money to buy goods is by selling them." Selling them to whom? Well, naturally to the country which holds the kind of currency (or exchange) she needs for her purchases. It's just the old story of "you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours." If we refuse to scratch, no matter what the reason, we're not likely to be scratched.

If Denmark and a few other European countries sat to work industriously to capture British markets, and provide in return, markets for British goods the answer is pretty obvious, and it has no bearing on patriotism or any other ethical or theoretical eulogizing.

SOON ON PROBATION?

Joe Rutledge Says

By Joseph Lister Rutledge

MOURNFUL BEGINNINGS

Victor Hugo, looking out of his Paris window at the crowds behind the barricades screaming for government and justice, scoffed: "These are not the people—these are only the mournful beginnings of the people."

We ourselves have come to believe that our business in the state is largely a matter of continual defence. We want some force to undertake the nebulous movements that we call human, forward-looking, constructive, and advised assistance. We want a start and we are content when government responds with the easy cure-all of Family Allowances. We are vaguely disturbed about our financial situation and declining foreign trade, but we accept the remedy of federal control of exchange and distribution, and asked assistance. We want an equalizing of rewards and get instead taxation that limits incentive and strangles effort. We think of world government or the abolition of war and gladly turn over our worries to government groups and committees of study.

There is much in our demands. They are often generous, well-intentioned and forward-looking. But they are just "mournful beginnings" of thinking, as we are of people. We have a vast credulity, and with it a measureless wealth of latent capacity. The capacity we suffer, the credulity tells us that someone other than ourselves will "take life forward." We have an absurd and thoughtless confidence in the good will, sense and devotion of the men in whom we have vested the power to put reforms into operation. We don't approve of them when they touch ourselves, but we hope they will miraculously be broad-minded altruism on matters more distantly personal. But the lesson of all history is that power is never used. We cannot hope for it now. The best we can hope is that, as individuals, we will share that power; that we will invent our individual strength and integrity in honesty informing ourselves, and assume our own measure of responsibility rather than bridge it to some committee or group or government. The people's representatives in parliament are the mirror of the people themselves. Society has never been better than the quality of the units that compose it. If we remain the "mournful beginnings" of people we cannot hope that our government can provide more than the "mournful beginnings" of our high and generous hopes.

I've Been Thinking

About Rewards to Students

H. G. Teskey

It is a fine thing to reward people for work well done and conscientiously done. It is a practical and effective way of saying "Thank You." It is something of a payment for service beyond that required in the ordinary performance of duties. It is encouragement for a continuation of such services. It results in a harmony of feeling between giver and receiver that unites them in bonds of friendship, confidence and goodwill.

In the field of education rewards are of special importance. Young people, especially, must know that the efforts that they make are recognized and appreciated. So all good teachers have their ways of granting rewards, not just to good students, but to all students who put forth a greater effort than that which is expected of them as a minimum. Of course these rewards are not material things—and for that reason they are all the more valued by most recipients—but consist of praise, judiciously bestowed, and the opportunity to work publicly displayed. Teachers know the value of praise as few others, except most mothers, do.

But rewards are not necessarily bestowed upon the deserving and lavishly bestowed alike, otherwise their value is lost. They must be reserved for superior effort. Those who become accustomed to receiving rewards for every bit of effort expended come to regard such rewards as pay and will not work without them. And this attitude of always looking for rewards can have unfortunate consequences. It can largely destroy a person's value to his community where a large amount of donated effort is necessary. How could our Boards of Trade, service clubs, church organizations, sports clubs, etc., etc., function unless many people were willing to donate their unrequited services to their administration? It would be a sorry world indeed if each and all of us, before performing any work, should ask, "What do I gain by this?"

This world is a pleasant place in which to live because it is largely populated by unselfish persons who give for the joy of giving to worth enterprises. Such people are the ones we like to make our friends for we know they will not ask, "How much do I get?" before they rush to our aid in time of need. It is to be sincerely hoped that their numbers and enthusiasm will continue to grow.

But I have at times been sorely troubled at the bestowal of rewards upon those who have merely performed their bounden duties. Both teachers and parents have been the guilty (?) parties. Many teachers, obsessed by the idea that "more can be gained by praise than by censure" insist upon giving that praise whether deserved or not. Many loving and ambitious parents offer their children bribes if they so much as pass their grade examinations and win a promotion—something which the children should be obligated to do without material reward.

Children should be made to understand that by doing good work they are helping themselves, not conferring a benefit upon teachers or parents; otherwise they will be prone to refuse to exert themselves unless the reward is in sight. Our schools have alarming by great number of students who think they are in school to satisfy the wishes of parents and have only a vague idea if any that self betterment will result. And I rather suspect that in many cases the child is originated when a perplexed parent made a rash promise to get the child to quietly go to school.

I have in mind a student who was promised a bicycle if he won promotion from grade 8 with honors. He did this with ease and collected his loot. But the lamented sequel was that he never again in his high school career did he do anything worthy of commendation—possibly because his parents could not afford to offer better prizes in succeeding years.

The above is not an isolated case. Almost invariably the grant of material reward to a young student has the effect of making him unwilling to strive for excellence in attainment solely for the satisfaction that excellence gives. If we do not continue to take joy and pride out of a job superbly done, without thinking of the reward, we have lost something essential to growth in civilization and the welfare of mankind.

I would make a serious appeal to all parents to refrain from promising rewards for services to be performed in the future. If parents request the services, it is the duty of the child to perform them without compensation. If the work has been particularly well performed, then any coming reward in the form of praise or material wealth. But if the reward is given, then it is best that the reward not be given for particular service, but because the general conduct of the child has been pleasing to the parent and deserves special commendation. If this rule is followed, the child will not come to expect rewards and will appreciate them all the more

Editor, Wainwright Star-Chronicle.

Dear Sir:

At the annual meeting of the Wainwright and District Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture the attending members, and visitors, witnessed a small display that, to say the least, was in bad taste. Constructive criticism is justified at any meeting but when the criticism falls to the level of vindictive personalities, without containing anything constructive, it is to be deplored. This is especially so at an annual meeting where the outgoing executive provide reports showing so many worthwhile projects carried to a successful conclusion, and also suggesting worthwhile projects for the coming year.

In my opinion this Chamber, which was originally the Board of Trade, has just concluded one of the most active years the members had witnessed. It has taken a part, large or small, in almost everything that has led toward civic improvement within the district. The credit for this activity lies primarily with the executive committee, with its work and co-operation of the rank and file member. The activity of the executive was in no small part due to the fine leadership provided by the President, during the past year. The fact that the President's name is prefixed by "Doctor" should not in any way detract from the effort and energy that he displayed—rather we should applaud the leader the fact that our doctors are so civic minded. It is episodes like that which often deter good men as aspiring to public office.

After listening to the summing up of the past year's activities by each executive member I feel that we, the public, should congratulate them on the effort they put forth. The cohesiveness and "meat" of those reports has never been exceeded at any meeting I have attended. One could not go away from that meeting without a feeling of pride in the dignity of the organization itself, and a feeling that he should put forth just a bit more effort to help the Chamber in the coming year. Let us turn out in larger, and larger numbers in 1950 to support the newly elected President, and his executive, and so helping to make the Wainwright and District Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture a bigger, and even better, organization.

Yours truly,

EURODENE R. BARRITT.

LAND UTILIZATION ON THE ILLUSTRATION STATIONS

There are ten Illustration Stations located in northeastern Saskatchewan which are under the supervision of the Dominion Experimental Station, Melville, Sask. Mr. E. H. Brown, Supervisor of Illustration Stations. The operators of these ten stations own or control a total of 4,788 acres of land of which 3,179 acres or 67.1 per cent is in cultivated crops and 1,589 acres or 32.9 per cent is classed as native pasture, woods and area required for the farmstead.

From this breakdown of crop land

It will be noted that the Illustration Stations are not only working on a cash crop basis but that some attempt has been made to balance the farm set-up by adding to the number of crops produced and thus to the number of farm enterprises carried out on each.

PROVINCIAL JUNIOR SEED FAIR

The Provincial Junior Seed Fair is again being sponsored by the Provincial and Federal Departments of Agriculture. Farm young people between the ages of 13 and 22 are eligible to enter this contest. Only one quart of grain is required for an exhibit so that the preparation need not be an endurance contest, but rather a contest of skill. Any farm boy or girl with a fairly good sample of grain may prepare a one quart exhibit with a reasonable amount of effort. Prizes are offered for Wheat, Oats, Barley and Flax and are provided jointly by the Provincial and Federal Departments of Agriculture. Special prizes are offered to first prize contestants in the various classes by the Alberta Wheat Pool, United Grain Growers, Line Elevators Farm Service and Canada Milling Company. Leaflets are available describing the different contests at this office.

2, 4-D AGAIN

Farmers generally may find their weed control problems a little less complex in the future if a suggestion considered at the Third Western Weed Control Conference in Edmonton is put into effect. This dealt with standardization of the various commercial forms of 2,4-D supplied.

Cases were mentioned of farmers, who during spraying operations were unable to obtain the brand with which they started and had to change over to the product of another company. Not realizing that the newly purchased product was of different strength from the one previously used, improper application occurred and the results were not satisfactory.

Many farmers do not like the idea of having to make detailed calculations before mixing the 2,4-D and it would simplify matters considerably if all brands of 2,4-D contained the same amount of acid per gallon. It was realized that there are difficulties from the manufacturing angle, but the general opinion was that standardization would prove of tremendous advantage and that an early attempt should be made to solve this problem.

ORIENTATION OF FIELD SHELTERBELTS

The main function of a field shelterbelt is to lessen wind influence. In doing so there is reduced soil erosion, less moisture evaporation, reduction in mechanical injury to crops and lessened snow movement. Keeping this main influence in mind the orientation of field shelterbelts may be decided. At the same time convenience in the cultivation and cropping of land should be considered.

In most districts of the prairie region of Canada, says John Walker, Superintendent Forest Nursery Station, Indian Head, Sask., field shelterbelts with a north-south orientation would seem to be most beneficial, particularly for crops seeded each year. In much of southern Alberta, where prevailing winds are more or less from the south west, field shelterbelts with an east-west orientation may be most desirable.

For grasses, other perennial crops and possibly for winter wheat, where snow retention on fields is considered a very desirable effect of a field shelterbelt, orientation in one direction may not be superior to another. No other crops will benefit more than these from extra water resulting from snow drifts.

From limited soil moisture tests made by the Forest Nursery Station it would seem that, as time passes, a significant build-up of soil moisture may be expected on the north side of an east-west belt.

NEWS NOTES from your Dist. Home Economist

Sheila M. Forster, Rtyer

Hello Homemakers.

Well now it is time to do your Christmas baking. Many of you will have your Christmas Cakes finished but just in case you haven't got around to it, I am passing along one of my favorite recipes.

This is a medium dark cake.

1 lb. butter

1 lb. brown sugar

13 eggs

1 lb. (4 cups) flour

1 tsp. cinnamon

1 tsp. nutmeg

1/2 tsp. cloves

1/2 lb. raisins

1 lb. currants

1 lb. dates

1/2 lb. almonds

1 lemon, juice and rind

1/2 cup cold coffee

1/2 cup fruit juice

1/2 lb. citron

1/2 lb. lemon peel

1/2 lb. figs

Some tips in preparation.

Almonds—Blanch, and then cut lengthwise in slivers. Toast in moderate oven for a short time.

Raisins—Wash in very hot water so they will swell slightly. Allow to drain and spread to dry.

Figs and Dates—Cut into pieces.

Add about 2/3 of flour to fruit and peel.

Cream butter, sugar, spice and lemon rind thoroughly.

Steam for 3 hours and bake for an hour or an hour and a half. This ensures a moist cake and a steamed cake does not need the period of mellowing that a baked cake does. The danger of burning is less in steaming too.

You may steam your own favorite dark or rich cake. Not the light ones please.

Here's a light cake I borrowed from one of the other Home Economists.

Cocoanut Christmas Cake (6 lbs.)

1 cup butter

2 cups white sugar

4 eggs

3 1/2 cups flour (all purpose)

2 tsp. baking powder

1/2 tsp. salt

1 cup sweet milk

1 lb. sultana raisins

1 lb. dates

1/2 lb. cherries halved

1/2 lb. citron peel

2 cups shredded cocoanut

Juice of 1 lemon

1 lb. blanched almonds

1 tbsp. vanilla

Method:

Cream butter, sugar and salt. Add beaten eggs. Sift 3 cups of flour with baking powder and salt. Combine with first mixture. Mix remaining flour, raisins, dates, cherries and peel. Add to mixture. Add cocoanut, almonds, lemon juice and vanilla. Bake in slow oven for about 3 hours.

FARM NOTES FROM ABOARD

Wheat Research

A wheat research institute is to be established at Wazga Agricultural College, near South Wales, Australia. The institute will undertake research in all phases of wheat growing and will also examine the baking qualities of wheat produced in Australia.

World Wheat Agreement

The number of countries to sign the International Wheat Agreement now totals 81, when at the end of October it was 78, says the Buenos Aires, Argentina. The total quantity of wheat which importers have guaranteed to purchase is now 418.5 million bushels. This is 85.5 per cent of the overall quantity of 491.5 million bushels which all signatory importers accepted under the Agreement.

Spanish Grains

Total output of wheat, rye, barley, oats and corn in Spain in 1949 is estimated at 4 million metric tons compared with 3.4 million tons in 1948. In field shelterbelt effects are:

1. slope of land with reference to prevailing winds.

2. number of field shelterbelts planted in a given area;

3. composition of field shelterbelts with regard to species used and number of rows of trees in them.

4. nature of soil and cropping practices followed.

The following observation, made by Tree Planting Supervisor R. H. Dunlop, on May 2nd, 1948, at Conquest, deserves repetition here:

"Weather continued dry with very little rain here last night, ending another day of terrific wind and dust. While there is some drifting there has been no destructive drifting to date in this particular area. In the Delisle, Vancouy, Grandora region drifting has been considerably worse. Subsoil moisture is still fair to good, with one and one-half to two feet in fallow, and one to one and one-half feet in stubble. There has been no runoff whatever from the heaviest drifts as I saw them in February."

"On level land the water from the drifts did not spread more than ten or fifteen feet beyond the edge of the drifts. The subsoil under the heaviest drifts is still very much the nature of putty, but is not interfering with, or delaying, seedling."

Any practical measure which will prevent loss of valuable moisture and prevent snow, a potential source of water, from drifting into low spots warrants adoption.

CHECK STORED GRAIN FOR MITES

Mites are small animals, scarcely visible to the human eye, which at times infest cereal and other food products. They are soft-bodied creatures and of more or less pearly white colour. They may occur in other foods such as those listed.

During the early winter it is often necessary to store grain on the farm. Farmers would do well to examine their grain frequently during this period of storage. Damp or tough grain is especially susceptible to attack by mites, and serious infestations may occur during the winter months.

In order to test for mites, grain should be sifted over a screen of about 30 meshes to the inch. This will retain the grain and coarse dockage while allowing the dust and mites to pass through. The accumulated dust should then be spread out in a thin layer—preferably on a sheet of black paper. The mites, being white in color are readily seen, particularly if a magnifying glass is used. In cold weather the mites may be sluggish, but if the paper is held for a short time about ten inches above the stove, they will warm up and move more rapidly. If the dust is tipped onto an- other paper, many of the mites will remain on the original one, as they tend to cling to the surface beneath the dust.

It is well worth taking time out to test stored grain during the winter. If infestations are found they should be reported to the Dominion Entomologist, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, for further advice.

Cream butter, sugar, spice and lemon rind thoroughly.

Steam for 3 hours and bake for an hour or an hour and a half. This ensures a moist cake and a steamed cake does not need the period of mellowing that a baked cake does. The danger of burning is less in steaming too.

Time Out FOR Laughs

"What kind of saddle do you want?" the cowboy asked the Dude. "With or without horn?"

The Dude pondered a moment before answering. "Without one, I guess, there doesn't seem to be much traffic on these prairies."

"What is the secret of success in life?" "I don't really know, but I fear it's connected with work."

The speaker was getting tired of being interrupted. "We seem to have a great many fools here tonight," he said. "Wouldn't it be advisable to hear one at a time?"

"Yes," said a voice. "Get on with your speech."

"Well," said Snaggs, "I think man dogs have more sense than their masters."

"Yes," chimed in Craggs, "I have a dog like that myself."

And he couldn't understand why they laughed!

PARENTS INFLUENCE FAMILY-FOOD HABITS

Present day food habits are causing the medical profession much concern, states the Public Health Bulletin, published by the Ontario Department of Public Health.

"Both adults and children are eating far too much of the more expensive rich, sweet foods—cakes, pastries, candies, soft drinks, etc.," says the Bulletin. "These are the foods which supply energy only, which lead to overweight and enter into the serious modern dental picture as well. They are expensive in more ways than one.

"On the other hand, the cheaper, healthier and more nutritious foods, milk, the whole grain cereals, whole wheat bread, fruits and vegetables, etc., that supply, as well as energy, bone building and health materials, are neglected.

The Bulletin states that such necessities are neglected by children often because the parents do not care for them sufficiently. Bad food habits of parents as a rule are an influence on the eating habits of the children because foods that parents accepted are usually accepted by the family. Parents like and dislike frequently influence the likes and dislikes of children, because children are great imitators.

"When parents decide to eat and to enjoy the right foods, thus setting an example for their children, they not only do themselves a good turn but are shaping the dividends which come from a healthy, well-nourished family."

Discussing overweight, the Bulletin says that medical authorities sacrifice overeating, especially to the overweight.

ing of wrong foods, and very seldomly to glandular disturbance.

"They further assure us that overweight enters very definitely into the current picture of heart conditions, high blood pressure, diabetes, etc."

Chamber of Commerce Committee Reports

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE & SPORTS COMMITTEE 1949

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: The Chamber of Commerce decided to sponsor Pro Wm. Midget, Juvenile and Intermediate Hockey. Five hundred dollars was very generously donated towards this by the merchants and citizens of the community.

During the season we purchased three outfits of sweaters and socks, and one complete Goalenders equipment. Sweaters and socks going to the two Midget teams and the Commandos, the same chosen for the Intermediate.

The Commandos played in the Eastern Alberta League and at the end of the season had one point to their credit, gained from a tie with Lloyd Melrose. They had a total expenditure of $1286.19 and receipts of $1068.35 showing a net loss of $217.84. They have $152.00 worth of equipment on hand.

The loss was covered by money from the celebrations fund. The committee during the summer gained control of all hockey by purchasing the Junior equipment from the B.I.A.

For this season, a Hockey committee consisting of Dr. J. D. Wallace, Jim Humphries, Fred Sheffield, Ken Tory and myself, have decided to sponsor Pro Wm. Midget, Juvenile and Intermediate teams.

Pro Wm. teams are being managed by same people as last year, namely Mr. L. B. Adams, Mr. E. Wilson and Mr. J. Mitchell.

Midget teams are under the capable hands of Mr. J. Humphries.

A Juvenile team is being formed by Ken Tory, who will manage and coach them with a view to entering the provincial Juvenile "B" playoffs. We have the making of a good team here and should show a very good account of themselves.

Ken Tory, who is a good team here and should show a very good account of themselves.

Department of Agriculture were heard on the very vital topic of Soil Conservation. Control and preventive measures for this ever increasing menace were discussed.

The formation of a society to sponsor an Agricultural Fair in Wainwright was discussed at executive meetings of the committee. The object was to find the proper set up for such an Agricultural Society with a membership of at least 50 persons. Town and country residents could make up this society, but we felt that the nucleus should be farmers. Some farmers were approached on the subject which was received with moderate enthusiasm. This is as far as this project has gone.

The question of a shelterbelt to give home shelter from the wind from the North and West for the P.M.C. was discussed in the executive. Free trees are available from Indian Head Experimental Station for such a memorial planting. Our effort would be preparing the ground, planting and caring for these trees for a period of three years till the trees become established. After that time the belt should be 10 to 15 feet tall and past the wedding stage. Or the plan might just have to be carried out and presented to the town for action.

Under Recommendations for the Agricultural Committee for 1950 1. Further work in the formation of an Agricultural Society with the immediate objective of an Agricultural Fair in Wainwright; also other benefits that can be derived from a society.

MINISTER HEADS DELEGATES TO FAO

The Canadian delegation to the annual Conference of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO), opening this year in Washington on November 21, will be led by Rt. Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, with Dr. G. S. H. Barton, special assistant to the Minister, as alternate head. It was announced today.

The delegation will also include in its membership Dr. Georges Bouchard, Assistant Deputy Minister of Agriculture, with producers represented by Dr. H. H. Hamman, president, Canadian Federation of Agriculture, and also head of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers; Clive Plants, manager, Fisheries Council of Canada, Ottawa; Clarence J. Morrow, Fisheries Council, Lunenburg.

Accompanying the delegation will be advisers appointed from Departments of Agriculture, Fisheries, Mines and Resources, Health and Welfare, External Affairs and Finance.

Most important subject to come up for discussion at this year's conference is: expected to be the proposal for the establishment of an International Commodity Council. House to handle surplus food products.

HOG MANGE

There is evidence that many of our Alberta hogs are infected with Sarcoptic Mange. Early in the disease, small thin scabs appear usually around the eyes and ears, and if unchecked they affect practically the entire skin of the hog. In extreme cases the skin appears rough and wrinkled.

Dr. J. G. O'Donoghue, Extension Veterinarian, Alberta Department of Agriculture, says that this disease is serious. It is caused by small mites which burrow under the skin. The mites are so small to be seen with the naked eye, but they cause extreme irritation and the infected animals constantly rub and scratch themselves. The condition is highly contagious and will spread rapidly from pig to pig until all animals on the premises are affected.

Control measures are simple and highly effective, says Dr. O'Donoghue, provided they are carefully applied. Old crank case oil applied to the skin with a stiff brush will kill the mites. This must be repeated every few days until the disease has been cured. Never apply it to more than half the surface of the skin at one application.

Commercial preparations for the treatment of mange are available and are quite satisfactory. Consult your local veterinarian as to the best one to use. It is important that all straw and litter that has been in contact with diseased animals be burned or destroyed.

ment on hand. The loss was covered by money from the celebrations fund. The committee during the summer gained control of all hockey by purchasing the Junior equipment from the B.I.A.

For this season, a Hockey committee consisting of Dr. J. D. Wallace, Jim Humphries, Fred Sheffield, Ken Tory and myself, have decided to sponsor Pro Wm. Midget, Juvenile and Intermediate teams.

Pro Wm. teams are being managed by same people as last year, namely Mr. L. B. Adams, Mr. E. Wilson and Mr. J. Mitchell.

Midget teams are under the capable hands of Mr. J. Humphries.

A Juvenile team is being formed by Ken Tory, who will manage and coach them with a view to entering the provincial Juvenile "B" playoffs. We have the making of a good team here and should show a very good account of themselves.

Ken Tory, who is a good team here and should show a very good account of themselves.

Department of Agriculture were heard on the very vital topic of Soil Conservation. Control and preventive measures for this ever increasing menace were discussed.

The formation of a society to sponsor an Agricultural Fair in Wainwright was discussed at executive meetings of the committee. The object was to find the proper set up for such an Agricultural Society with a membership of at least 50 persons. Town and country residents could make up this society, but we felt that the nucleus should be farmers. Some farmers were approached on the subject which was received with moderate enthusiasm. This is as far as this project has gone.

The question of a shelterbelt to give home shelter from the wind from the North and West for the P.M.C. was discussed in the executive. Free trees are available from Indian Head Experimental Station for such a memorial planting. Our effort would be preparing the ground, planting and caring for these trees for a period of three years till the trees become established. After that time the belt should be 10 to 15 feet tall and past the wedding stage. Or the plan might just have to be carried out and presented to the town for action.

Under Recommendations for the Agricultural Committee for 1950 1. Further work in the formation of an Agricultural Society with the immediate objective of an Agricultural Fair in Wainwright; also other benefits that can be derived from a society.

After the wedding ceremony the newly old vicar eyed the gny. bridegroom very kindly.

"Well, my friend," he said, "here is your lawful wedded wife."

The young man grew purple and shuffled his feet as he turned to his bride and mumbled:

"Pleased to meet you!"

BUTZE

Our quiet little district was disturbed the other day by what we thought might be some pre-historic monster come to life and was threatening around in the bush on Blumstein's farm. There was shouting and screaming, a scolding and grunting and trees were seen falling in every direction. However when the intruder finally emerged from the tangle of brush we saw, to our relief, that it was Everett Tutu's brush-cutting outfit with Everett and his helper Harry Lacey, at the controls.

Butze was a very busy place one day about a week ago. George Miller had in a car of coal and farmers from near and the unloaded it in less time than it takes to tell it. The weather has been warm ever since.

Mr. George Miller spent last Monday in Wainwright receiving medical attention.

A number of the Butzes folk took in the dance at Prosperity last Friday and by all reports they had a "jam" good time.

Mrs. L. Fahner of Chauvin spent a couple of days in the district last week cooking for wood cutters.

Among the Butze visitors on Sunday were Melvin Gosde, Dean Fahner, Mr. and Mrs. R. Reinhardt and family. George Fahner at present is employed in the Custom Wood Craft Shop in Chauvin.

Don't forget to get your tickets for the big dance at the school on January 20th, 1950. Get in on the big prize, you don't have to be in attendance, every ticket sold will be in the draw.

The mind of the weather man is sure changeable these days, one day we have eight inches of snow and good sleighing, a few days later we go back to the wagon, today we had to get our skates to get around and by the sound of the rain falling new tomorrow we will be swimming.

Women get along nicely together so long as the number living in the same house is less than two.

WAINWRIGHT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ANNUAL MEETING

during the past year. While it has not been verified, it is generally understood that Wainwright is to become a permanent military camp.

He suggested that the Chamber appoint a committee of three or four as a liaison between the town and the camp, as it was too much for one man to handle. He felt that much better results could be obtained with the larger committee.

Mentioning the fact that a greater number of married personnel might be expected in the future he urged that steps be taken to get a housing scheme in operation here.

Referring to sports, he said that he had failed rather badly in working with the army on this score. Much greater co-ordinated sports activity could prove beneficial to both he claimed.

Calling for a more friendly reception of the boys in uniform, he said that while most of us had been invited out to the camp, few of us had returned the compliment by asking the officers or men to our homes. We should make better arrangements he felt to make the men feel welcome, and part of the community.

He made reference to the condition of the road from the creamery west to the Gold Standard Hotel, urging that this be given earliest possible attention.

Mr. Morgan then gave the report of the entertainment committee in which he stated that arrangements had been made for the use of the Legion Chateau for the dinner meetings, and that the ladies of the Legion Auxiliary had kindly agreed to look after the catering. He said that printed notice cards had been issued, and found practical in reminding members of the meetings.

Mr. John Mitchell, membership committee, reported that work in this connection had been hard to handle due to the fact that the fees had been set at a late date, and with the recess of July and August collections had been delayed until such a time as it seemed too late. He reported the collection of 25 memberships and 25 associate memberships.

He said he felt it essential that the businessmen of town should show that they were members of the Chamber by displaying their membership certificates as prominently as possible. In closing his report he suggested that the new committee collect for memberships as early as possible; that the certificates be displayed prominently; and that a chairman of the membership committee keep an unofficial roll of attendance at the meetings.

Dr. J. D. Wallace then reported on his work as chairman of the publicity committee. Referring to the proposed scheme for advertising the opening of the new highway, he said that due to the late date at which work was completed it was felt that should be left over until next year.

He referred to the directional signs which had been put up with the co-operation of the A.M.A.

He complained of the lack of correspondents for the daily newspapers.

He referred to the advertising program for the Carnival, saying that the local press, motion and radio had been used with satisfactory results. He recommended for the future that efforts be made to get better news coverage in the daily press and radio; that the publicity folder which had been hanging fire for a couple of years be produced; that a bulletin board be erected in the downtown area with its cost covered by small advertisements. This bulletin board to be used for hanging posters and notices of various kinds where they might be easily read.

Kenn Torky then gave a resume of his activities for the year as councillor of civic improvements, airport and highways. He stated that extensive ground-work had been done on the matter of planning for a new cemetery within walking distance of town.

Referring to his work on the Town Improvement Committee he said that he had enjoyed some fine hospitality and had some motions passed, but that apparently nothing worthwhile had been accomplished. He felt that it was wise now to press for the completion of Highway 14 into a hard-surfaced road, and to campaign for a good highway south to Claar.

He urged that the approach to the town be graded out to greater width, and that the attention of the chamber be given to the road south of town.

He also urged that due to the number of temporary houses being erected, a zoning program be instituted which would assure a reasonable appearance of the residential section of town.

He also called for the levying of tax at business rates on residential properties used for business purposes.

Editor's note—At this time there is no tax levied for business purposes alone. This is a matter which is under the consideration of the town council at this time.

He also called attention to the lack of a comfort station in town. He said that such a station could be located in the town hall or elsewhere. He also referred to the need of a rest room and pointed out the desirability of some scheme for beautifying the approach to the P.M.C.

Mr. Armshaw reported that the postal authorities had expressed a willingness to co-operate by allowing the use of some of their property for the erection of a rest room, provided the building lines conformed with those of the present post office.

Mr. E. Pearson of the Calgary Power Company made reference to the completion and official opening of the new power line from Vermilion, stating that Wainwright was now in a fortunate position of being supplied with power from both north and west. He said that with the present outlook there would be adequate power available for any industry that decided to establish here.

(Editors note—The financial report given by W. Coleman, treasurer, will be published in our next week's issue, as it is too lengthy for inclusion this week.)

Dr. Bradley then gave his report as president of the Chamber. He said that the year had been a pleasant one and had been featured with many enjoyable and civic minded activities. The Chamber had been very active and the co-operation on the part of the citizens and members had been excellent. The work done had been outlined in the reports, which had been read so that the membership would get true picture of what had been done and attempted.

The officials and committee had been inspired in their work by no selfish motives, but only by a desire to see the town and district progress, he said. All this had required much effort—there had been many formal and informal meetings, personal discussions and thought.

He issued a call for more civic pride. Much progress has been made in Wainwright, he said, but not everyone knows about it. Drawing a parallel between Edmonton and Calgary he said that while the latter had in many ways been falling behind the former, Calgary had got out and boosted for their town and its doings in a way that Edmontonians did not. "Would you wear white hats like the Calgary folks, or snow boots like the people of Ponoka to advertise your town?" he asked.

Referring to the town's progress he referred to a certain man who had been in business here for 41 years. On retiring he was asked where he would start business if he had to do it all over again, and his reply was "Right here in Wainwright!"

Referring again to the many improvements that had been made in the town, he said that the Chamber of Commerce was one of the chief factors in their accomplishment. This is the only organization in town to which everyone may belong, he said, and we all want to see the organization strong for the coming year.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Bradley for his fine work as chairman of the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Hissett spoke, calling attention to the Wainwright Military Camp area, where, with shooting prohibited, coyotes enjoyed an undisturbed breeding and hunting place. He made reference to a new potent poison which is being used in some parts of the United States, which he suggested be considered for local use. He stated that coyotes were a widespread and growing menace, and held them responsible for the fact that wool production in many parts of the province was down to 25% of what it had been a few years ago.

He said that the Government did not seem to be interested in helping stock growers combat this menace, and asked whether the Chamber of Commerce would like to co-operate.

Election of officers followed, with the following results:
President: J. Davidson.
Vice-president: J. Mitchell.
Secretary: Dr. J. D. Wallace.
Treasurer: R. Ireland.

Celebrations committee: S. Ryan.
Sports committee: J. Humphries.

Office of councillor for Agriculture was left open pending the formation of a farmers' division of the C of C.

Mr. Torky notified a vote of thanks to the retiring executive.
Mr. Torky made reference to the fact that the industry of education was the one which involved perhaps the greatest number of workers and taxpayers, and industry in town and suggested that the Chamber consider the addition of a councillor for Education on the executive. This was deferred to later meeting.

The meeting then adjourned.

LOCAL & PERSONAL

The monthly meeting of the Edgerton and District Board of Trade will be held on Tuesday, December 13th at 8:00 p.m. in Sawyer's Electric.

St. Mary's W.A. held a well attended meeting on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. G. Sawyer. Mrs. R. Bishop being hostess.

A well attended meeting to arrange Operation Coyote to be held on Wednesday, December 7th, was held in the school last Saturday evening. Zero hour on Wednesday is 1:00 p.m. Meeting place the four mile corner.

Edgerton contributed $52.50 to the British and Foreign Bible Society this year. The collectors were Mrs. R. Kingston and Mrs. B. L. Groves

The Edgerton Branch of the Canadian Legion held an executive meeting last Thursday evening

Mrs. A. R. Milne returned last week from an extended visit to her daughters living at the coast.

Mr. C. Fenton moved the house he purchased off Mr. Nel Nichol last week

Mr. and Mrs. F. Ramsay were city visitors over the week-end to Jarow and Fort McMurray. The C.N.R. through their B and B gang were renovating the station house last week

Mrs. W. Bultmore returned from a visit to the Vermilion district last week.

McCafferty

Mrs. Ed. Crossley, of Langley Trail, B.C. is visiting with Mrs. Tennant and other friends in the district.

Mrs. Mahoney returned home on Wednesday after spending a few days at Wainwright with her daughter, Mrs. A. Smith.

The school meeting at McCafferty Wednesday night was fairly well represented from the three districts. In the absence of Mr. Griffiths, Mrs. Harry Scott acted as Secretary, Bob Jackson being the chairman.

Stanley McElride has now gone to Jarow to work. Arthur Pavey is also working there and Margaret and children are visiting at McElride's.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wilkinson and family made a trip to Paradise Valley last week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Welch. We understand they had quite a time with icy roads.

Some of the men spent four days last week building a kitchen on the Hall. They are to be congratulated on the fine job they did. The F.W.U.A. wish to thank all those who helped.

The dance on Friday night was not quite the success we had hoped for but a good time was had by all who attended.

Mrs. Elson returned home on Thursday from Chauvin where she visited with Frank and family and other friends. Mrs. Alec Kraus and Gary went to Edmonton on Thursday.

F. ZAJIC ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Frank Zajic was re-elected by acclamation to the Wainwright Divisional Board at a meeting held on Monday afternoon. We regret that the minutes of this meeting are not available for publication in this issue.

ROSEDALE

A good crowd turned out to the Pic Social held in Saddle Hill School on Tuesday night, sponsored by the local P.U.A. Miss Treadwell presented a film on T.B. and one on immunization which were greatly appreciated. Other features of the evening's entertainment were a sing-song; a violin solo by Mr. Paul Stanko, a talk by Mrs. F. Ford, a game of "Twenty Questions" with Experts Mrs. G. McAfee.

Mrs. P. Tisdler, Mrs. G. McMillan, Mrs. G. Kellogg and Messrs. Bill Redmond and Norm McAfee; and an auto-harp-mouth organ solo by Doug Burnett. Judging by the prices paid for the peas our local then really like them.

Mrs. Arne Grethbrok was ill on Thursday so the youngsters had a holiday.

Messrs. Arne Grethbrok, Don Redmond, Glen and Norman McAfee, Doug Burnett, Lorne and Kendall Cornfield joined the coyote hunt at Irma last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D'Alberston and Elaine and Mrs. A. D'Alberston were guests Sunday at Doug Burnett's.

THE AIR WE BREATHE

An overheated, stagnant atmosphere lacks invigoration, makes for slowness and irritability and encourages colds. It also makes ventilation difficult for any entering air, even chilly by comparison. Working in an overheated room may cause dry and swollen skin, nose, throat and chest troubles and a craving for stimulants rather than food.
